

Unite The Night

A Night of Unity and Peace

It's times like this where we all need a little unity, a little peace. Times like this where we could all use a little support from one another. We as a nation need to remember that we are all in this together. This virus doesn't care about our race, our gender, our orientation, our political preference... it is affecting us all. Inconveniencing us all. Driving us all apart.

I organized this event to give us pause, a chance to take a deep breath and realize that no matter what, we need to support each other and work together to beat this thing. This event is an opportunity to reset and remember what we should value most but instead take for granted, life. I'm asking you to join me in lighting up the night with luminaries to line our streets/sidewalks and balconies. Stand united with me for one night, let's "Unite The Night".

What: No gathering, just a display of light and unity. Make your luminaries from common household items (milk jugs, soda bottles, paper bags, mason jars, etc.) - Get creative!

When: Every Sunday at 8:30pm in each time zone – What this means is that you'll put your luminaries out when it's 8:00pm your local time, so that all may participate around the world! We ask that you keep your luminaries out and lit for at least 1 hour, so that there is never darkness between time zones.
